Community patrols present

Glenys Closey, Dave Thomson, Lorna Taylor, Rachael Jarvis, Tracey Lord, Geoff Austin

Glenys and Lorna called into the Fire Station about a month back and introduced themselves, today they were back for a photo shoot along with 4 other volunteers from the Massey Community Patrols. The volunteers are backed by the NZ Police and supporting businesses. Community Patrols have a presence New Zealand wide.

The Massey Community Patrols circulate day and night around Massey, Westgate, West Harbour, Hobsonville, Whenuapai and Herald Island. There are 32 volunteers who man two patrol cars donated by The Trusts Community Foundation. Petrol, first aid kits and basic safety equipment is also donated.

The police welcome new volunteers, a team of two-four volunteers drive around the area and report any suspicious activity, they organise their own hours to fit in around their commitments. Extra eyes for the police are invaluable and help keep our local communities a safer place for us to live in.

If you are interested in volunteering some time, contact the Massey Community Police Station on 832-4099 or contact Marie via Facebook.

500 new homes in the Airfields precinct at Hobsonville Point

Stage Two development area

Panuku Development Auckland has confirmed Avanda Group as the housing developer for Stage Two of the Airfields precinct at Hobsonville Point.

The Airfields precinct is a 20 hectare Council-owned site, which was formerly part of the Hobsonville Airforce Base.

Avanda and its building partners will develop more than 500 homes in Stage Two, of which a minimum of 10 per cent will be affordable housing. Housing will be delivered within an agreed timeframe.

Panuku Chief Executive Roger MacDonald says Avanda was chosen after a competitive tender process was undertaken, with strong interest received from six potential developers.

"Avanda is a significant new entrant in the property development market and they showed commitment to developing all of Stage Two, rather than just individual parcels that were offered to the market."

Avanda has commenced detailed design to obtain the necessary resource consents for infrastructure works so that housing can be developed.

"We look forward to working with Avanda as they bring our masterplan for hundreds more quality homes in Airfields at Hobsonville Point to fruition to help ease Auckland's housing shortage," says Mr MacDonald.

Avanda project manager Winson Tan says Avanda is delighted to be working with Panuku to realise the potential of the Airfields precinct and proud to be building quality, sustainable and affordable modern homes for New Zealanders.

"Airfields is situated in a vibrant community with a rich history and superb local amenities. The housing shortage is well acknowledged and we are pleased to have the opportunity to help meet this challenge in delivering a range of high quality housing options in this rapidly expanding and sought-after community."

The sale of Stage Two builds on the success of Stage One, which will deliver 102 standalone and terrace homes, with building scheduled to begin in the next few months.

of married life

The best reason in the world for a fabulous holiday in the tropical resort of Rarotonga for local couple, Margaret (nee Hands) and Graeme Barnard, was their Golden Wedding Anniversary. Married at All Saints Church in Ponsonby on the 14th January, 1967, back when everything was bought and paid for in pounds, shillings and pence, the couple now have two step great grandchildren as well as six grandchildren from their three grown children.

Both originally from Wellington, the Barnards lived in Huia and Massey before moving to Whenuapai Village in August 2001, where they have been a very community minded couple. With his background career as an engineer and sheet metal worker, and employee of the Water Board, and later with Hire a Hubby, Graeme has set his sights on most tasks over the years. He built their home in Massey and has been very involved with Council issues whilst serving on the Resident and Ratepayers Association and initiating the local Community Patrol. He and Margaret were for quite some time Custodians of the nearby Community Hall, responsible for its hire and general maintenance. Margaret has enjoyed a long career as a schoolteacher as well as a fulltime mother now grandmother and still is involved with relief teaching on a fairly regular basis. She enjoys craft work, particularly pottery and mosaics, and is competent in many creative enterprises from baking and decorating cakes to making costumes when required. Calm, caring and capable of whatever is needed at the time; she and Graeme have been involved in most activities in the Village. Whilst both avid readers, they are nevertheless a very hospitable couple and good neighbours. Graeme enjoys his boat and getting out while Margaret hates fish and prefers being home. Together they are quite at home amongst us and we wish them Congratulations on this great achievement and many more years of married life ahead.

Whenuapai's Great Easter Egg Hunt and Jazz Picnic

Whenuapai Village will be bounding into Easter with its "Great Easter Egg Hunt", jazz picnic and crazy hat contest on the afternoon of Saturday April 8.

The community is invited to bring their picnic rugs and baskets along to the Whenuapai Village Hall and Malcolm Hahn Reserve from 2pm, when the fun will begin.

Kids of all ages can take part in the Easter egg hunt around the reserve, while parents can enjoy free hot crossed buns – thanks to a generous donation from the Upper Harbour Local Board.

There will also be a kids' crazy hat competition – for Easter bonnets and Mad Hatters hats - with fantastic prizes kindly donated by The Causeway. Come along dressed in Easter-themed headwear, or a mad hat. The competition will be judged in age categories – six years and under; and seven years and over.

And while the kids are enjoying themselves with plenty of fun activities, the adults can relax to the sounds of The NorthWest Trio, who will play jazz in the park during the afternoon.

The Whenuapai Ratepayers & Residents Association is thrilled to bring this Easter event to the village community.

Preparing for an interview - Part 2 of 3

Be Ready to ask questions:

The questions you ask show that you are interested in making sure the job is right for you. Here are some suggestions:

- What would I be doing and what would a typical day be like?
- Which tasks are the most important ones?
- How would I be trained or introduced to the job?
- How long should it take me to get up to speed
- How many people will I be working with, what do they do?
- Could I see where I'd be working and meet the team?
- When would you like me to start?

If the interviewer doesn't tell you things like wages, overtime, holidays and sick leave, it's okay to ask them.

We suggest you do this towards the end of the interview – after you've found out all about the job and have had a chance to tell the employer how suitable you would be.

Take information with you:

Take a folder to the interview with your original CV, certificates and references (and spare copies), a copy of your application and any letters you've sent the employer – plus anything else they've sent you. Also take along your notes and questions to jog your memory, its okay to check your notes and to take notes as well.

Be ready on time:

Know the time and place of the interview and the name of the person who will be interviewing you (remember it may be more than one person).

Arrive early so that you have time to relax and feel confident. If you want to take family or Whanau along, you'll need to arrange this beforehand with the person who is interviewing you.

Make a good impression:

The impression you create in the first few minutes is very important. The employer uses your presentation to assess your attitudes, values and how you will fit in with the company. They may seem obvious but it's worth repeating some simple rules

- Take extra care with the way you look.
- Wear clean suitable clothes and shoes (no track pants, t-shirts or tight short clothes)
- Smile, shake hands firmly and look people in the eye.
- Address people as Mr, Mrs or Ms unless they say otherwise.
- Wait to be asked to sit down – be relaxed but sit upright.
- Don't smoke, eat, use a water bottle or chew gum.
- Try not to fiddle with your hair, clothes or pens.
- Don't be critical of other companies or people

Vintage open day

The Rotorua Tractor and Vintage Machinery Club held an open day in Mamaku (just out of Rotorua) on Sunday 26 February.

We decided to head down for an overnighter, a day out and a good excuse to catch up with family.

Enthusiasts' tyre kicked and chewed the fat, soaking up the sunshine and smell of freshly mown hay.

An eclectic mix of vintage cars and tractors, ploughing demonstrations, tractor pulls, animals and people.

The 3 teams of Clydesdale horses were popular. One team pulled a ride-on plough with handler on board, an English gentleman, dressed in shirt and tie worked a hand plough, while the last team was worked by two female handlers. The girls certainly had their work cut out keeping the Clydesdales, Jessie and Nellie under control at first, before they settled into their stride. All three teams entertained the crowd with friendly competition. We went over and met Clydesdales, Jessie and Nellie at their break. The horses were sisters and had been transported down from Cambridge for the event. They were well handled, loved animals and enjoyed a pat up.

The tractor pull provided plenty of smoke and noise and was a real crowd pleaser. There were food stalls, model displays and a swap meet for the traders. Hey was cut, swept and baled using an old square baler and loaded on to a restored, 1927 International truck.

Old school entertainment, where strangers were really friendly and happy to regale memories of days gone by.

It was a really great way to spend a day. McElroys

Herald Island Environmental Group - bring back the Native Birds Programme

After a very successful introduction in 2016, there is plenty of small birds now starting to reappear signalling a positive response to the reduction in rat numbers by 129 since May last year. Residents are seeing more fantail and silver eye and while we have a long way to go, the volunteers efforts are have a positive impact. In 2017, the HI Environmental Group will be widening the programme to include up to a quarter of the Islands properties. Funding and final details are well advanced for a release in late Autumn.

Jan Diprose and Ian McNeill recently met with our new Auckland Council Community Park Ranger, Anna Baine. Anna will be supporting a range of programmes on public land including weed removal, new plantings and animal pest control. Great to have Auckland Council support as the programme is widened to include other pests like stoats and possums.

Auckland Council Ranger Anna Baine and Jan Diprose from Herald Island Environmental Group with a map of the island highlighting areas of targeted activity.

We have produced a free paddling guide promoting journeys that can be made around the northern Waitematā Harbour this summer.

There's a range of options, catering for beginners to experienced paddlers. Trips range from 5km to 20km and are suited to stand-up paddle boarders and kayakers. The guide also contains a safety checklist, tips on the best times to set out, and where to get important weather and tidal information. You can access the guide online, or pick up a copy from the Albany Village Library or the Upper Harbour Local Board office on Kell Drive, Albany. Herald Island Environmental Group's win kick starts Community Nursery

The Herald Island Environmental Group (HIEG) is very thankful to have won a $100 Mitre 10 voucher in Auckland Council's Biosecurity Survey Prize draw. It was a great help toward kick starting the community nursery they are setting up with donated goods and a grant from the Upper Harbour Board. The voucher was used to purchase equipment for growing local native plants will enhance the island's existing natural areas - including those in our back-yards, inland reserves, foreshore reserves and protected significant ecological areas from Kowhai Beach Reserve to Pahiki Reserve. This will in turn improve vegetation cover from east to west in the North-West Wildlink corridor - one important factor for providing safe habitats and routes for birds such as Fantail, Tui and Wood Pigeon.

Spice rubs

Called a 'Rub', 'Dry Rub', or 'Spice Rub' this is a mixture of spices (sometimes with herbs) that is made for the purpose of being rubbed on raw food before the food is cooked. Used mainly for preparing meats and fish. The spices are usually toasted to add flavour before being coarsely ground. In addition to the spices you can add salt or sugar – the salt for flavour and the sugar for caramelization. Dried herbs or ground spices being used can be blended in before storing or just before using.

Combinations:

Caribbean – ginger, coriander, turmeric, cocoa.

Pacific – ginger, turmeric, pepper, yellow mustard seeds, dried lemon/orange peel. Add fruit juice/soya to make a wet rub.

Jamaican – brown sugar, allspice, pepper, dill seeds, nutmeg, paprika, thyme. For wet rub use pineapple juice or rum.

The food can be marinated with the spice rub for some time (can be left in fridge overnight) for the flavours to incorporate into the food or it can be cooked immediately. This forms a coating on the food which can be left on or partially removed before cooking.

- Food can be frozen with the rub coating, providing you adhere to any food warnings that apply to safely freezing food.

- Wet or sticky rub - mix dry rub with olive oil, yoghurt or butter, to make a 'sticky' rub for meat or fish.

- If leaving the skin on chicken try to get the rub underneath the skin as far as possible to get the full infusion on the meat.

- When water or stock is used in cooking process it is better to partially cook food over dry heat first to get flavours of spices through the food.

- Adding the sugar ensures caramelization as the food is cooking

- When using diced meat or small cuts, you can shake spices and food together in plastic bag to coat.

Other ingredients that can be added or substituted are: Dried chilli flakes, paprika, coffee beans, ginger, turmeric, cocoa, dried lemon peel, dried herbs – thyme, rosemary, oregano, sage.

Whenuapai Floral & Garden Circle

February 9th, 2017

Sixty eight members were present at the first meeting of the year and we were pleased to welcome Peter Horsley, son of Zita, who was our club's foundress back in 1986. There was a noisy buzz throughout the Hall as members wasted no time in catching up with one another after the long holiday break. Called to order, the usual formalities and items of business were dealt with in straightforward fashion.

Jan Velvin and Margaret Treneary

Our guest speaker was Jan Velvin, who spoke on propagation, in particular tissue culture. She has been involved with forestry work for the last ten years, prior to that with ornamentals. Most of her work is done with tweezers. She showed us tiny specks of Redwoods and a fifteen month old sapling about two feet tall. It is a long winded process from alga and rooting and multiplying hormones then transferred to a medium in 75-90 % humidity to grow skin, which takes about ten days. After ten years the trees will be 5-6 metres tall with plans to mill them around 45 years.

Their purpose is for use in the building industry especially for shingles. Harvesting is done by cutting at the base and they will regrow with no need to replant. What I found really interesting is that this not only applies to trees but also lettuces and cabbages apparently. It was also mentioned that Sugar Delight is a great main crop Potato and extremely versatile. Jan is also involved in fostering the development of endangered species in particular the New Zealand Dotterell. Banding is done to keep track of numbers & locations.

While we grow some of our own produce, we regularly supplement our supply from Fruitworld; however a recent trip cost much more than anticipated when my husband accidentally dropped instead of pocketing his wallet. When we recovered it later, we were pleased to find all his cards still inside, and the photo of my much younger self, but it was a shock to see the cash was gone. Whoever stole about two hundred dollars from a pensioner was likely not in need but greed, and just plain mean. Nigel Latta (Mind over Money) may well have found his experiment had entirely different results if he dropped a wallet in our area.

A picnic was held at Betty's place in Massey in late February and members were asked to carpool where possible. Other reminders were to bring your own food and wear your best or favourite summer bonnet. These were judged and three prizes awarded. Guests were challenged to identify ten trees in the garden, which proved tricky; just one individual and one trio managed to correctly name them all. A gumboot throwing competition was a popular activity with a pink floral boot being tossed far and wide, and once or twice rather high. An unrushed day in lovely surroundings with good friends made for a very pleasant and successful event.

Until next time,

Happy Gardening from Mary Anne Clark

Herald Island Garden Club

What a balmy summers night we had to visit two hidden gardens on Herald Island.

The first was Sue's quirky treasure trove of all things horsey and nautical, collected from her two interests over the years. Dense green planting provided the backdrop for her collections of "just old stuff" (in her words) anchors, bollards, chunks of shipwrecks, wharves, marine machinery and more....cleverly positioned to show them off to advantage. She also had some riding gear and a piece of trunk that resembled a horsehead! Around the front and back entrances to the house, she had used potted colour to pop out, from the rest of the garden of large trees, natives, bromeliads and fruit trees. It has become a lovely hidden sanctuary to retreat to.

The second was Clare and Jono's back yard that was a jungle, underneath huge mature natives and tree ferns. They saw the potential and took two years to transform it into the venue for their wedding. An old concrete path was replaced with a curving boardwalk setting a beautiful scene, for the bridal party to enter. They formed a pond, transplanted ferns around it and created a rocky water feature, down the slope to one side. The bridge they built across it, was where they got married. The big project was a very large deck and pergola in the corner where some enormous trees snapped in a storm and needed to be felled, this became the reception area. A flat area opposite became a small Japanese inspired seating area, a great backdrop for photos. The overgrown front garden revealed some treasures such as violets, bergenias, iris, ferns, cannas that helped fill the new garden. They were so grateful to family and garden club members who gave the bromeliads, ligalurgia, mondo and succulents, that helped underplant this new oasis. The few larger plants they needed to purchase became their gift registry. Now they have a beautiful hidden "private resort" as several guests called it. Thank you so much to both garden owners for being so hospitable.
